

SECRETS OF DEVELOPING WRITING SKILLS

Salokhiddinov Firdavs Samariddin o'g'li

Student of Samarqand State Institute of Foreign Languages,

Salokhiddinov Akobir Samariddin o'g'li

Magister of Samarqand State Institute of Foreign Languages

Faculty of foreign languages and literatures

Abstract: This article provides information on how to improve writing skills for young learners, as well as suggestions from instructors, and this article how are beginners' skillfulness at this skill.

Key words: Dan Kamp, writing styles, the writing process, what are writing skills? grading of writing.

A lot of young beginners have been trying hard with their writing problems which are writing skills. This article gives information about that.

Firstly, we need to know how to approach writing. For example, which type of writing this belongs to? As an addition, I can mention the following tips:

1. Identifying the purpose. The first step in writing knows why you are writing, what is your goal? Is it to inform, tell a story, and express an opinion?

2. Defining the topic. What topic are you covering? Choosing a topic sets the directions of the writing process.

3. Understanding the audience. Who are you writing for? Understanding the audience helps determine tone and style of the writing.

4. Planning: Before starting to write, consider what kind of outline or plan you need? Maintaining consistency between the beginning and the end crucial in writing.

5. Getting inspiration: Use examples similar writing, or books that inspire you.

What are writing skills?

Writing is technical skill that you use to communicate effectly through written word, though this very depending on what are you writing several that transcend categories. Writing can more specifically include:

1. Grammar
2. Vocabulary
3. Spelling
4. Sentences construction
5. Sentences construction
6. Structure
7. Research and accuracy
8. Clarity
9. Persuasiveness

Each of these components can include the quality of writing.⁵

Many learners think that to improve their writing, they need to write more essays and stick to formula. However, it is more important to focus on whom we are writing for and where we are writing? For example, let's take the IELTS Writing section. Uzbek students often write in a way that suits them and use C1-level words, but when the results come in their score is B2 or B2 plus. I believe the reason for this is that they don't consider who is grading their essay. For instance, in Asia people describe the white color "white as a snow" while in Africa, they might say "white as a bone", because they usually see the bone as a white and the snow rarely falls in Africa.

Furth more, Dan Kamp says that about the 5 steps of the writing process his own website.

1. Prewriting. This is the initial phase where the writer generates ideas and plans the structure of piece. It involves brainstorming, outlining, and organizing thoughts. Thinks like writing workshops can help engage students in this kind of activity. Prewriting is the foundation for the writing process. helping writers clarify their purpose, audience, and main ideas.

2. Drafting. In this step, the writer puts pen to paper or fingers to keyboard and begins to compose the first draft. The focus is on getting ideas down without worrying too much about perfection, the goal is to create a rough version of the content, building

3.Revising. After completing the drafty the steps back to review and revise the content. This involves making structural changes, refining the organization, clarifying ideas, and improving the overall flow. Revising is crucial for enhancing the coherence and effectiveness of writing.

4. Editing. Editing is a detailed review focused on correcting grammar, punctuation, spelling, and other mechanical aspects of the writing. It addresses issues at the sentence and word level, ensuring that the language is clear, precise, and error free. Editing enhances the readability and professionalism of the written piece.

5. Publishing. The final step involves preparing the written work for, it's intended audience. This could include formatting, proofreading, and making any final adjustments. Publishing is about presenting the polished and refined piece to the world, whether it's through traditional print, online platforms, or other means.⁶

In the process of developing writing skill, there are many important aspects that apply not only beginners but to everyone. The most important thing is to understand the target outline who will be evaluating the writing. For instance, in the case of organizations like IDP (International Development Program), and the British Council. it is crucial to know how to approach writing for each. Since each has its own specific requirements, it is essential to use appropriate words and styles for that particular context when writing an essay any written work. This will undoubtedly enhance the quality of the writing and make it more purposeful.

⁵ <https://www.course.org/articles/writing-skills>

⁶ <https://bookcreator.com/2023/09/the-writing-process-unlock-your-inner-author-with-the-5-step-wrting-process/>

REFERENCES:

1. <https://www.course.org/articles/writing-skills>
2. <https://bookcreator.com/2023/09/the-writing-process-unlock-your-inner-author-with-the-5-step-writing-process/>